LEADERS IN ASBESTOS LAW

According to the National Cancer Institute, approximately 3,000 cases per year of malignant mesothelioma are being reported in the United States, and the incidence appears to be increasing.

America's history of supporting a strong manufacturing-based economy has a dark side—thousands of people were exposed to asbestos and became sick with a rare form of cancer called mesothelioma.

Cleveland based Kelley & Ferraro has one of the largest asbestos litigation practices in the country. Representing nearly 35,000 clients who have mesothelioma, lung cancer and asbestosis, who come from every State in the Union, as well as outside the United States, Kelley & Ferraro understands how to think big, which benefits its clients in a big way.

Kelley & Ferraro has not forgotten its roots and remains dedicated to representing the rights of America's working class: the steelworkers, autoworkers, railroad workers and their union brethren who have been harmed through a lifetime of exposure to asbestos-containing products. Equally important to Kelley & Ferraro are the family members of America's workers who contracted mesothelioma from household exposure to asbestos.

Since Kelley & Ferraro's inception in 1997, founding partner James L. Ferraro has worked with a dedicated team of Kelley & Ferraro lawyers and staff, now over 80 strong, to produce dramatic results for Kelley & Ferraro clients. Mr. Ferraro (also founder of The Ferraro Law Firm in 1985), was a national finalist for trial lawyer of the year in 1997. He has had multiple multi-million dollar verdicts in asbestos litigation and in other
